

Dr. Sam Bakri, Founder of Eastern Healthcare

Dr. Bakri is a serial health care entrepreneur; he is the founder of Eastern Healthcare. He was formerly the CEO and co-founder of Kind Consumer, the UK based medical technology company working on building inhalation technology for the smoking cessation market. He has previously worked at Roche and Novartis, and advised numerous companies in the life sciences space. He was also the founder and CEO of Eastern Healthcare Partners. Dr. Bakri studied medicine at the University of London (Guy's & Thomas's Hospital Medical School), and has an MBA from Harvard Business School where he was a Fulbright Scholar. Dr. Bakri is the entrepreneur in residence at Mayo Clinic and a faculty member at Johns Hopkins Carey School of business focused on international entrepreneurship in healthcare. He is also an advisor to the British Government and part of the global entrepreneurs programme, and is working with Mayo Clinic as an entrepreneur-in-residence.